

ABSTRACT

Methods, systems and equipment useful for monitoring in vivo activities of CCI-779 or other drugs. Numerous drug activity genes can be identified by the present invention. The expression profiles of these genes in peripheral blood mononuclear cells can be modulated by CCI-779 or other drugs. Therefore, these genes can be used as surrogate markers for monitoring drug activities in vivo.